Future of Western Kansas.

The person who does not see a great future for western Kansas has a meagerly extended vision of poorly developed reasoning faculties. The "back-set" which befell this part of the country is soon to be retrieved. The country has had a "setting back" in its agricultural progress. It is the wild, inflated boom which has taken a back seat. From this time forward the country will develop from its own resources.

We draw some information from the philosophy of events to prove what we comprehend to be the outcome of this portion of the heritage from Uncle Sam.

Great events produce great effects. The logic of cause and effect is greatly discernable in a local application. The farmers of western Kansas feel the force of the irresistible logic of events. The war of the rebellion produced havoc and disaster, in the loss of millions of lives and property; but it developed the character of the people of the country. Many fortunes were wrecked, but many fortunes were made. Many lives were lost, but many men attained distinction, and the country to-day sustains a stronger position before the world. The resources of the country are developing, in both north and south, and notably in the south.

Convulsions of nature leave great monuments to attest the power of the infinite ruler that holds the destinies. Can we not apply the philosophy of the forces of nature to the conduct of man. He must follow nature's course to win.

He can rear no grand mountains, nor can he capsize great rivers to flow. But the man of the times takes advantage of the situation.

Against the solemn protestations of nature, man planted corn in the face of hot winds. He sowed to the winds and reaped the whirlwinds. All new countries are wheat or grain producing.

This is beginning to be understood here. They may be partial failures as much the result of poor seed and bad planting as from the elements; but success comes from patience, toil and perseverance.

To turn misfortune into account is a part of wisdom. Everybody has planted wheat, and the most of the grain is in excellent condition.

Every available piece of ground which had ever been plowed on the homestead or abandoned land has been put to wheat.

The wheat seed has been planted in all kinds of ways with all sorts of machinery. If it doesn't turn out well it will not be the fault of the weather. It will make a crop whether much or little.

Great grain crops; immense elevators; markets west and south. This is the future of eastern Colorado and Western Kansas.—New West Echo.

MR. TURNER informed us the other day that a large part of that $40,000 appropriated by congress for experiments in testing the underflow theory of irrigation would be used along the Republican river in Cheyenne county. He is decidedly of the opinion that that theory offers the only available means for irrigation in this section, and he will see that the work is pushed to completion.—McDonald Times.

A loan company that had made large loans on Decatur county lands was forced to foreclose on nearly fifty square miles, having them on hands propose to make them useful by farming them. This will be done on an extensive scale. Steam plows and harrows will be used and an effort made to show that farming out in the northwest pays. Decatur is in the northern tier of counties and the third from the west.—Leavenworth Times.

Republicans and Farmers Alliance Should Unite.

The St. Joseph, Mo., Herald, one of the leading Republican papers of the west, advises a union of Republicans with the Alliance. It winds up a lengthy article as follows:

There is no serious rupture yet between the Alliance and the Republican party in the West. We are in excellent condition to join with the Alliance in all its reasonable demands, and by urging all Republican farmers to enter the Alliance what little differences that may exist may easily be overcome. We have before us the trusts, combinations, Wall street on the one side and the Farmers' Alliance and labor organizations on the other. We cannot go with both; we have already made a strong fight against the former, and now what is in the way of a fair understanding and a union with the latter.

Wherever the leading Republican papers have made a bitter fight against the Alliance, there the result has been most disastrous to the Republican party, and wherever those papers have stood by the Alliance, there the Republican party is victorious. Ohio Republicans took up the cause of the wool-growers and there the victory is ours. In the northwestern congressional district of Iowa the Sioux City Journal has for years battled for the farmers and the Farmers' Alliance and there we have a victory with the editor of the Journal elected to congress. In the southwestern district of Iowa the Creston daily Gazette, the principal paper of the district, has for two years championed the cause of the Farmers' Alliance and there we have a Republican victory. The leading papers of Kansas have fought the Alliance and the party looks like it had been run over by a tornado.

Discretion is the better part of valor. The bull was brave, but he showed bad judgment in trying to butt the engine off the track. There is no necessity for a split between the Alliance and the Republican party, but the sensible thing for Republicans to do is to form an alliance with the Alliance and labor elements, and thereby prevent the formation of a new party in the northern states.

KIRWIN ITEMS.

From the Chief.
Dr. A. Fuller returned yesterday from a visit of more than two months in Connecticut.

W. I. Wands, of Denver, arrived in Kirwin early Monday morning in reply to a telegram announcing the death of his father.

J. R. Hackley, who had the misfortune to have a piece of steel get into his eye, left Wednesday for Osborne, to be treated by Dr. Harris.

From the Independent.
Mr. Charles DonCarlos is expected here in a short time in order to get ready to move to Colorado.

Sheriff Lee Scrivner was in town last Friday. Lee is always a welcome visitor at headquarters.

O. L. Smith, county superintendent elect of this county, was in town last Saturday. We acknowledge a pleasant call. O. L. had bad luck on his way here from Agra and had his buggy broken pretty badly. No serious damage however was done.

LONG ISLAND ITEMS.

From the Leader.
Cum Hoy and Swan Nelson made a shipment of hogs on the first day of the week.

A Pattee completed the iron work to the bridge, in the south part of town this week and the workmen have the bridge about completed, and the grading for the approaches is being done this week.

Six hundred head of cattle passed through this city on Monday from Norton county which had been taken in on foreclosures of mortgages. They were being shipped eastward to where more feed could be found.

Rev. G. L. Tennant went to Lenora on Saturday to preach from Rev. Cumbow's pulpit while that gentleman conducted the revival at this place. It is indeed a pleasure to see these brethren co-working with such friendship.
